

Please do not limit an individual states ability to decide for themselves/ourselves how they/we should develop and administer their/our Telephone Privacy Laws.

I used to be inundated with unsolicited phone calls until Indiana developed its current law which has dealt so effectively with the telemarketers ability to intrude on its citizens. I am not aware of having missed ANY important phone calls since opting in to Indiana's "no-call" list.

Please don't mess with what we have! It is working well in Indiana!

Thank you,

Rick Erwin
